Jazz bassist Teruo Nakamura has been a pioneer of Japanese jazz musicians since 1964, having been active in New York for 60 years. His album "The Rising Sun" reached the top 10 on the US album charts and he even performed at Carnegie Hall. Today, his music have been listen by 300,000 people on YouTube. Now, he will be performing with his close friend Yoshiaki Masuo, who made his debut with Sadao Watanabe's band, spent seven years in Sonny Rollins's band after moving to the US, and performed with Ashford & Simpson at Madison Square Garden.
